About

Venini is a prestigious Italian glass company renowned for its exquisite craftsmanship and innovative designs in the world of Murano glass. Founded in 1921 by Paolo Venini and Giacomo Cappellin on the island of Murano, Venice, the company blends traditional techniques with modern artistic sensibilities. Paolo Venini and Giacomo Cappellin's vision of revitalizing Murano glass attracted talented designers and artists, establishing Venini's reputation as a leader in artistic glass. Collaborations with renowned figures like Gio Ponti, Carlo Scarpa, and Ettore Sottsass have significantly contributed to Venini's innovative and diverse creations. The company's signature techniques, including Murrine, Filigrana, and Incalmo, showcase their dedication to pushing the boundaries of glassmaking. Venini's influence extends to design and contemporary art, with works showcased in major museums worldwide, such as MoMA in New York and the Victoria and Albert Museum in London. Committed to preserving Murano glass traditions while embracing contemporary design, Venini continues to captivate collectors and art enthusiasts globally, upholding its legacy as a master of Murano glass. Today, Venini remains an innovative force, producing exceptional pieces that marry traditional craftsmanship with modern aesthetics, ensuring the timeless art of Murano glass remains celebrated in the contemporary world.
